

ABSTRACT

JPS
A multivalued information recording method in which energy applied to information units on a recording medium is varied to record multivalued information, wherein in accordance with a relationship between multivalued information in a predetermined information unit and multivalued information in both of information units adjacent to the predetermined information unit, the energy to be applied to the predetermined information unit is decided.

COPYRIGHT © 2000